

Hello Paul,

Happy New Year! 2023 was a head spinner. On a good note, we had the honor of working with over 500 families this past year. We're so fortunate to have Marty, Kerry and newbie Elisa on the team - couldn't do it without them.

Among those families were several who inspired this month's blog on how to explain dementia to children. Families caring for 'young old' loved ones living with dementia needed not only to provide care but to explain to adolescent children what was happening . It's a delicate message and the considerations in this blog also apply to children with a special attachment to a grandparent living with dementia.

To start 2024 we've been given the opportunity to spread some of the knowledge and connections we've gathered over the past eight years in two series of monthly discussions on senior care called The Sandwich Generation Group.

We've brought together a few of the remarkable professionals who work in senior care in this area to share their expertise. The series run concurrently over the first six months of the year at The Fairfield and New Canaan Public Libraries. (The flyer for the Fairfield Public Library, which starts Thursday night is below).

This month's blog about how to explain dementia to children was prompted by several experiences we had this year with families caring for a 'young old' person living with dementia.

Explaining Dementia to Children

Dementia is a challenging journey, not only for those directly affected but also for their families, especially the youngest members. Explaining dementia to a child demands sensitivity and awareness, that consider the child's age as well as their relationship to the person living with dementia. Understanding may vary when it involves a grandparent versus someone younger like a parent or younger relative. In this blog, we will delve into the distinct challenges of broaching this delicate topic and provide practical tips to navigate these difficult conversations.

Cooking for one or two?

Here's an idea from Susan's "The Downsized Gourmet"

Slow Cooker Hungarian Goulash

This month's The Downsized Gourmet™

Ingredients

- 2 lbs. stew meat, cubed
- 1 large onion, diced
- ½ c. ketchup
- 2 T. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 T. brown sugar
- 2 tsp. salt
- 2 tsp. Hungarian sweet paprika
- ½ tsp. dry mustard (Colman's)
- 1 ¼ cups water, divided
- ¼ c. flour
- Noodles or crusty bread

Instructions

- Place beef in slow cooker and cover with onion.
- In a medium bowl, stir together ketchup, Worcestershire sauce, brown sugar, salt, paprika, mustard, and 1 cup water. Pour mixture over the beef and onions.
- Cover and cook on Low setting for 8-9 hours, or until meat is tender.
- Mix ¼ cup water with flour to form a paste and stir into the goulash.
- Cook on high for 10-15 minutes or until sauce thickens.
- Serve over noodles, mashed potatoes, or crusty bread!
